Petchey Academy student Fauzia Shahan celebrated her GCSE results

STUDENTS from Hackney schools shrugged off the new rigorous GCSE grading system to record excellent results last week.

Provisional figures show that the percentage of students in the borough gaining both English and mathematics at grade 4 and 5 increased from last year. GCSE results in English at grade 4 were well above national figures with over 80 per cent of our students achieving this standard. In maths there is similar positive news. The results show that nearly 75 per cent gained a standard pass – also above the national average. There was also great news for Hackney's A-level students, with 75.4 per cent achieving A* to C grades.

Streets ahead

Garden Walk, near Rivington Street, was part of Car Free Day last year

ONLY the cleanest vehicles will be able to use certain streets in Shoreditch during peak hours from next month, as part of a pioneering new scheme to reduce pollution for residents, businesses and pedestrians in the congested City Fringe area.

The nine Ultra Low Emissions, or (ULEV), streets, the first of their kind in the capital, come into force on 3 September.

Petrol, diesel and all other vehicles emitting more than 75g/km of CO2 will be banned from the streets between 7am-10am and 4pm-7pm from Monday to Friday, reducing harmful emissions while people are travelling to work and school, and making it easier to walk and cycle in the area.

The restrictions cover Rivington Street, Charlotte Road, Cowper Street, Singer Street, Tabernacle Street, Paul Street, Ravey Street, Willow Street and Blackall Street.

The ULEV streets are being introduced by Hackney and Islington councils, with funding from the Mayor of London's Air Quality Fund, and the Office for Low Emission Vehicles' Go Ultra Low City Scheme.

Deputy Mayor, Cllr Feryal Demirci, said: "Failing to act on poor air quality, which causes nearly 10,000 premature deaths across London every year, is not an option, and that's why we're being bolder than ever in our efforts to tackle it.

> "Our ULEV streets will reclaim the streets from polluting petrol and diesel vehicles and improve the area"

"We're thrilled to be launching our Ultra Low Emissions Streets – the first of their kind in the UK – which will reclaim the streets from polluting petrol and diesel vehicles, and improve the area for thousands of people every day."

Residents and businesses with addresses and existing parking permits or vehicles with associated off-street parking in the ULEV streets will be exempt from the restrictions.

Non-permitted vehicles, including delivery vehicles, taxis and through traffic will not be exempt and will face a Penalty Charge Notice if they enter the streets during peak hours.

A breath of fresh air

ULEV Streets are part of a raft of schemes aimed at improving air quality in Hackney

School Streets

So far, the Council has closed five streets outside schools to traffic at opening and closing times, making it easier for children to walk and cycle, and cleaning up the air. There are 12 School Streets planned by 2022.

Charging points

The number of electric car charging points across the borough has increased from 16 to 57 over the past two years. By 2025, all households will be within 500m of a charging point.

Better cycling

The Council is working with TfL to redesign the Pembury Circus junction, removing through-traffic from Amhurst Road and installing protected cycle lanes in Mare Street, and on improving Seven Sisters Road by installing protected cycle lanes through the Woodberry Down Estate.

Zero Emissions Network

Residents and businesses can get help and access grants from the Zero Emissions Network to save money, reduce emissions and improve air quality.

Electric Streets

With funding from TfL and the Mayor of London, Hackney, Tower Hamlets and Islington councils are creating 'Electric streets' in the City Fringe, where there will be a concentration of charging points and electric vehicle-only parking and loading points.

Electric fleet

The Council now has over 40 electric vehicles in use, ranging from pool vehicles used by street engineers, to vans used by maintenance teams and the community library service.

£1m award to help vulnerable children

The funding will help create a youth work and mental health team to work with the most vulnerable young people in the borough

HACKNEY Council has been awarded over £1 million to help vulnerable young people at risk of exploitation.

The Council successfully bid for the money from the Home Office's Trusted Relationships Fund, which was set up to help social workers, police, nurses and other professionals form close, protective relationships with children and young people at risk of sexual exploitation, county lines, gang crime or relationship abuse.

In Hackney the funding will create a youth work and mental health team to work with the borough's most vulnerable and hard to reach young people.

They will support them to access specialist mental health support, targeted youth work and positive activities to help divert them away from being drawn into crime.

The team will also support staff and local projects to create a safer environment through methods such as mental health first aid, community guardianship and bystander interventions, which help people to understand how they can respond and intervene in potentially harmful situations. The project also aims to generate research and insight into how young people are groomed into sexual and criminal exploitation that will support with national programmes.

> "In Hackney, we are proud to lead the way in innovative approaches to protecting young people"

Deputy Mayor, Cllr Anntoinette Bramble, said: "We're delighted that our bid to the Trusted Relationships Fund was successful.

" In Hackney, we're proud to lead the way in innovative approaches to protecting young people, and not only will this funding help young people in our borough, but it will contribute to the national research and evidence base to help children across the country."

News in brief

Selsea Place: More affordable homes for rent at development

RESIDENTS living in new housing association homes in Dalston will save nearly £400 per month in rent after a Hackney Council grant to increase the amount of social housing being built in the borough was approved.

Ten homes under construction in Selsea Place, originally earmarked for near market rent levels, will now be let at much lower social rents after Newlon Housing Trust was awarded £945,000 by the Council to make the change.

The rent cut means the average rent for the properties will be around £820 per month, rather than £1,200.

The grant is part of the £16 million Mayor of Hackney's Housing Challenge fund – money made up of receipts from Council homes sold under the Government's Right to Buy scheme – which is available to housing associations to help them build more homes for social or living rent. Seventeen new homes for social rent have so far been delivered through the programme – with millions in funding still available.

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: "While I'm proud that Hackney is building thousands of new Council homes, it's vital that housing associations and other providers play their part in responding to the housing crisis by building more social housing.

"I'm delighted that Newlon are doing just that – and our funding will ensure that these homes in the heart of Dalston are at a genuinely affordable social rent for families most in need of somewhere to live."

The Mayor of Hackney's Housing Challenge is open for applications. For more information, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/regeneration

Project to tap energy reserves beneath borough's parks

PARKS and green spaces in Hackney could help to create green energy to heat nearby buildings, thanks to a ground-breaking project.

The Council is joining forces with 10:10 Climate Action and energy consultants Scene to explore whether underground and water heat pumps could be used to generate sustainable energy, which could be used to power nearby buildings.

Heat pumps use electricity to concentrate low temperature heat stored in the ground, or bodies of water, and pump it through pipes into buildings for heating.

While 43 per cent of residential buildings in Germany have heat pumps installed, the technology is rarely used in the UK.

The project is funded by Nesta's Rethinking Parks programme. The first phase, which will consider whether the scheme is feasible, is set to get under way later this year.

If successful, the project will share learning with other parks authorities to allow them to roll out similar programmes.

Cllr Jon Burke, Cabinet Member for Energy, Sustainability and Community Services, said: "As a Council, it's important we take the lead in proactively reducing our reliance on fossil fuels, so I'm proud to be joining forces with experts in the field to investigate such an exciting initiative.

"The Powering Parks project has the potential to help us unlock sustainable energy and save – or even generate – money for important council services."

Sea Gals just keep swimming

Six Hackney schoolgirls swam the English Channel, raising over £6,500 for charity

SIX Hackney schoolgirls have become one of the youngest ever relay teams to swim across the English Channel.

The six 'Sea Gals' were Amelie Noor and Eve Napier, both 13, from Mossbourne Victoria Park Academy; Lucy Sims, 13, and Grace Radford, 14, from Clapton Girls' Academy; Ruby Greer, 14, from Hackney New School; and Sasha Vinnicombe, 13, from Morpeth Academy. They started their swim from Samphire Hoe beach, Dover, at 4.58am on 19 July, which meant a 1am start from Hackney.

The group, who have so far raised over £6,500 for the charity Child Poverty Action Group, according to their JustGiving page, took it turns to swim for an hour alongside the 'Viking Princess' support boat before reaching the rocks of Cap Gris Nez, France, 33 kilometres and 13 hours, 23 minutes later.

Their adventure began two years ago, when swimming coach Tim Denyer first proposed the idea of a charity swim across the English Channel to Eve and her mother Sarah.

Since the Channel Swimming Association decree that cross-Channel swimmers cannot wear wetsuits, Eve and her five friends – at this point aged just 11 – embarked upon a two-year training programme that included cold-water swims across London reservoirs and ponds, and swim trials in London Fields Lido. They also competed in races at West Reservoir in Stoke Newington, where they beat adult triathletes.

> "The best bit was spending the day with the team and supporting all of them"

The group examined charts of the Channel and learnt about ebb and neap tides, sharks, jellyfish and container ships before finally readying themselves for the relay last month.

Since their exact start time was dictated by the tides, the girls had to wait until the day before to discover, via text message, when they would be setting off. Some had to rush to secure permission to miss the following day at school.

Lucy pushed off from the English shore just before 5am. Her teammates and coach followed her on the 'Viking Princess', accompanied by a Channel Swimming Association observer who authenticated their swim.

Each girl spent an hour swimming in the sea before climbing back into the boat and being replaced quickly in the water by a team mate. Should any of them spend less than a full hour in the water, the whole team would be disqualified.

This was particularly concerning given that Amelie had her appendix removed five weeks before the swim, and had been barred from training for three weeks. When the date and time of the team's attempt was announced, the longest stretch she had managed in the water had been 30 minutes.

In the end, however, Amelie was the teammate to swim the final stretch and clamber onto rocky shoreline of Cap Gris Nez in France. The girls had battled sea sickness, exhaustion and even jellyfish, but they had made it.

After the swim, Grace said: "I think the most challenging part was having to build up to getting in the water because there is so much pressure on you to getting in right and swimming for the full hour.

"The best bit was spending the day with the team and supporting all of them. Completing the swim felt really amazing because we had worked so hard for that moment."

Ruby added: "It feels weird to have completed the swim because I don't think it has sunk in yet. Part of me misses the Sunday trips up to Dover, while part of me is glad we completed it without disqualification."

Ultra Low Emissions Streets are coming to Shoreditch

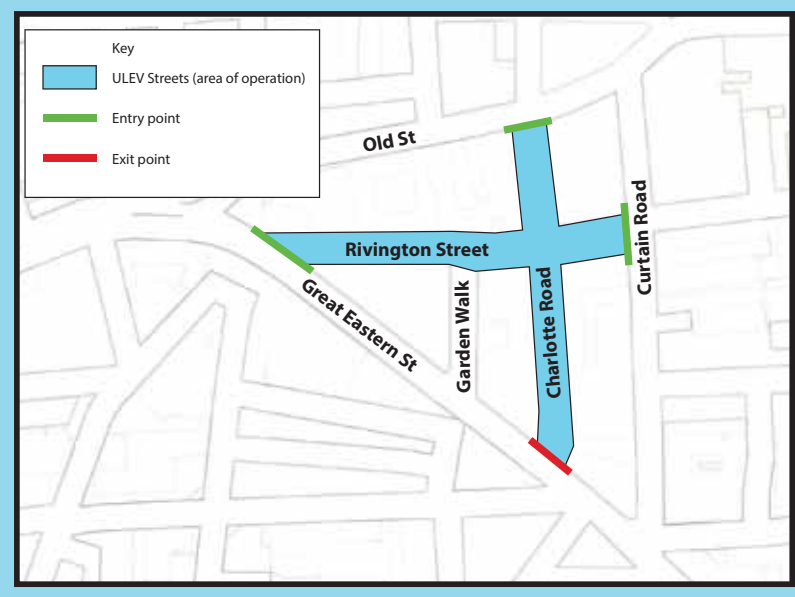

From Monday 3 September, eight streets in the City Fringe area will become Ultra Low Emissions Streets, and only ultra low emissions vehicles will be able to drive in during peak hours.

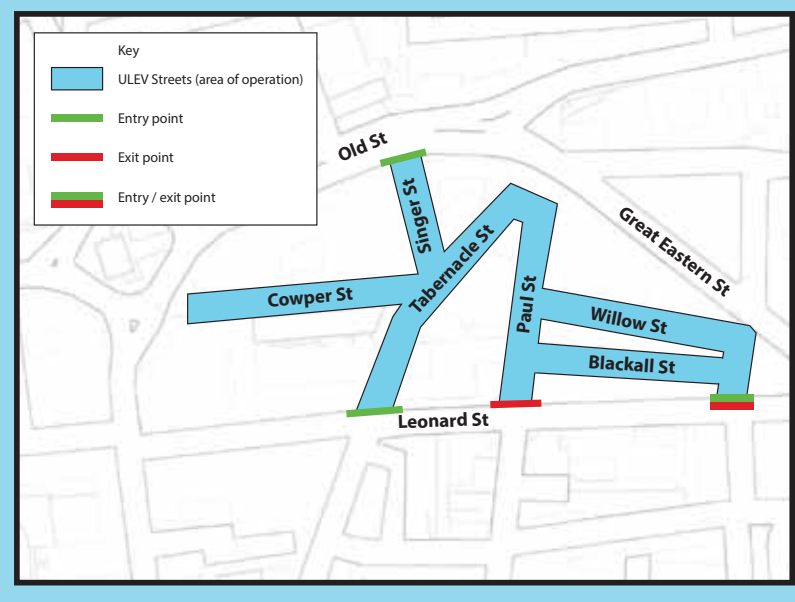

We are introducing Ultra Low Emissions Streets to reduce the harmful effects of air pollution in the City Fringe during commuting hours.

Residents and businesses on the streets who have existing on-street parking permits, or those who have vehicles with off-street parking, will be exempt from the scheme.

The Ultra Low Emissions Streets will operate Monday to Friday, 7-10am and 4-7pm. Ultra low emissions vehicles are those that emit less than 75g/km of CO2.

The mark of success

Excellent results from the borough's GCSE students

HACKNEY'S GCSE students didn't let tougher exams and a new grading system get in their way of success, as schools across the borough celebrated excellent results.

Provisional figures show that the percentage of students gaining both English and mathematics at grade 4 and 5 has increased from last year.

Nearly 70 per cent of students achieved grade 4 in both English and mathematics and nearly 50 per cent gained grade 5 in both subjects. These are well above last year's national averages.

This is the second year of changes designed to make GCSEs more challenging, with more weight on final exams, rather than coursework. This year also saw the expansion of the numerical grading system, with more than 20 subjects now marked in this way.

While the old letters and numbers are not directly comparable, an eight is the equivalent of an old A*.

At The Urswick School, E9, 64 per cent of students achieved five or more grades 9-4 (equivalent of A*-C). Among the highest performing students were Anh Vu, 16, who achieved 9s in combined science, maths and history. Grade 9s are awarded to students in the top 3 per cent of the country. Richard Brown, Headteacher said: "Our students worked hard and showed a great deal of resilience when taking anything up to 30 hours of different exam papers.

"I am delighted with their successes."

Pupils at The Petchey Academy, E8, outperformed last year's result in almost all areas, with 68 per cent achieving five or more GCSEs at grades 4 and above.

Cardinal Pole Catholic School, E9, celebrated a fifth year of improved results, with 64 per cent of pupils achieving a grade 4 or above in maths and English.

At Our Lady's Catholic High School, N16, Emma Owens achieved grades 6-9, and an A in Mandarin, despite contracting chicken pox during her GCSEs, meaning she had to sit her exams in a separate room, and Marie-Eunice Kouassi's results included grade 8s in English literature and English language – particularly impressive as she didn't speak English when she moved to the country from the Ivory Coast when she was in Year 5.

On average, over 79 per cent of Stoke Newington School, N16, students achieved grades 4 to 9 in the core subjects – up 4 per cent from last year. The school did particularly well in creative subjects, with strong results in art, photography, media, music, drama and textiles, and 29 per cent of the students achieved the English Baccalaureate – well above the 24 per cent national figure from last year.

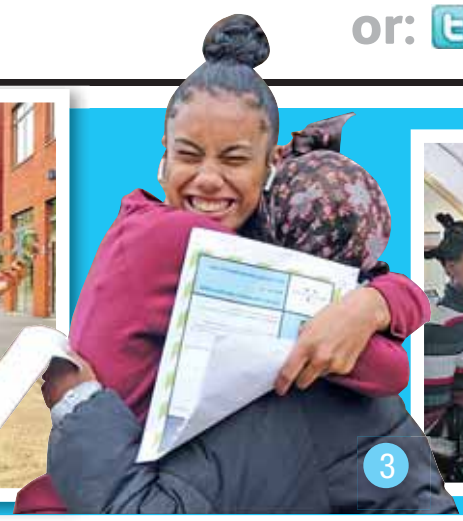

At Clapton Girls' Academy, E5, 78 per cent of students achieved grade 4 or above in English and maths, putting the school in the top 10 per cent of schools nationally for progress.

An astonishing 35 per cent of all grades were 9-7 or equivalent.

At Mossbourne Community Academy, E5, 54 students secured 161 grade 9 scores, and 87 per cent of pupils achieved five 9-4 grades.

STUDENTS across the borough celebrated their A-level results this month, with more of them off to their first choice of university than ever before.

An impressive 75.4 per cent of students achieved A* to C grades, despite recent changes which means grades are now based on final exams, with less emphasis on coursework.

The Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, and Deputy Mayor of Hackney, Cllr Anntoinette Bramble, joined actor Adam Deacon at BSix Sixth Form College, E5, and met students who discussed their future plans and ambitions.

Cllr Bramble said: "Well deserved congratulations to everyone who collected their results, and a big thank you to our brilliant teachers, school staff and families who have supported them.

"Whatever they go on to do next – whether that's university, an apprenticeship or work – I wish them the very best of luck for the future."

At The Urswick School, E9, 77 per cent of students achieved A* to C grades. Olga Arslan achieved three As in Psychology, English Literature and Sociology, to secure a place at LSE to study sociology.

She said: "I am so excited to be going to LSE with three As! I'd like to thank all my teachers that have helped me; I'm now one step closer to my dream of become a human rights lawyer."

> "I'm still in shock but it could not have been possible without the support from the maths and history departments"

At Cardinal Pole Catholic School, E9, Jedidiah Ubaldo was among students celebrating some remarkable results, having achieved three A*s and a place at UCL to read maths. Jedidiah said: "I'm still in shock...but it could not have been possible without the support from the maths and history departments who have pushed me to do my best."

At Mossbourne Community Academy Sixth Form, E5, a staggering 40 per cent of students achieved grades of A* or A, while 90 per cent achieved A* to C grades.

Five pupils racked up straight A*s, a further eight received confirmed Oxbridge places and four students will go on to study medicine and dentistry.

Student Franklin Nnodi, who broke his leg in a basketball match representing Hackney just three days before his maths exam, was relieved to achieve AAB grades, to allow him to study economics at Manchester.

Haggerston School, E2, recorded its best ever results, with A* to B grades up 16 per cent on last year, at 53 per cent.

More than one-third of Petchey Academy, E8, students achieved three or more A* to B grades, and are set to continue their studies in a wide range of subjects. Barbette Anang is off to Middlesex University to become a midwife, Ife Alle has secured a place at Lancaster University to study management and HR, and Tomi Kuku-Phillips will study business management and finance at South Bank University.

Students at Clapton Girls' Academy, E5, did so well that the school is now performing above the girls' national average in 16 A-level subjects.

At New City College, N1, there was a 100 per cent success rate in 10 subjects: biology, classical civilisation, further maths, Italian, law, sociology, physics, media studies, religious studies, and communication and culture.

By Harriet Worsley

Chef and restaurateur Tom Oldroyd talks about the journey he has taken to get his 'dream job' as owner of the Duke of Richmond pub, E8

I TRIED sixth form college, but it was as if I was looking for the right subject, and none of the ones I found through conventional education was a good fit," says restaurateur Tom Oldroyd, adding: "In the end I left by their recommendation."

Instead, Tom's mum sent him to a local hotel, which the family had been going to every New Year's Eve, to get himself a job.

Tom recalls: "I remember being about seven or eight, walking in and falling in love with how magical it seemed. When I got a job there, at 17, everything fell into place. I loved it.

"I started out as a breakfast waiter and worked my way up. I spent time as head of housekeeping, and my arms ached from putting up so many shower curtains. They sent me on a management course, I fell into events and organised weddings… It was as if I'd found my place."

Seven years later, however, Tom decided he wanted to broaden his horizons and went to university to study hospitality. There was a training restaurant attached to the course and he started working in the kitchen once a week.

Tom laughs: "They would try to send me home after my shift ended, and I'd want to stay. As a kid I'd run home from school to watch 'Ready Steady Cook', but I hadn't ever considered food as a career. From then on, though, I knew I wanted to give it a go."

So Tom moved to London to be closer to the restaurant scene and got a job at Alastair Little in Soho. For months, he did nothing except sleep and make pasta in a tiny basement kitchen.

"But," says Tom, "I loved it. I worked my way up to head chef in three years, then got a job at another Soho restaurant called Bocca di Lupo and had a crazy six months there before two guys who'd eaten at Alastair Little approached me.

"They said they wanted to set up a restaurant serving small plates of Venetian food and they needed a chef. I said 'yes', they signed a premises the same day and the roller coaster began."

> "Right now… It's the dream, really. Who wouldn't want to work an eight-minute stroll away, at their local?"

The three of them started with a restaurant called Polpo, then opened Polpetto a year or so later, and then Spuntino. Within just five years they'd opened nine restaurants.

Tom says: "I had only been working in a proper kitchen for a few years and suddenly I had 100 chefs under me.

"It was the most amazing experience. A lot of fun. But it kept me on my toes. There was no time off, none at all. And it got to a point where I was burnt out. I took a year out, and slept for most of it. Then I got engaged, and started to think about what I really wanted to do. It was to start my own restaurant."

So in 2015, Tom opened OLDROYD on Upper Street in Islington. Three years later, when the opportunity arose to take over the Duke of Richmond pub in his home turf of Hackney, it seemed too good to turn down.

Tom says: "We serve French-inspired food, using British, seasonal ingredients. We work with local businesses, like Dalston's 40ft brewery.

"My fiancée, Meryl, oversaw the interior design of the pub, and we have a baby who's already behind the bar.

"In a way, all my experience has come together at the Duke. I can pop in and out of the kitchen, and use all of my restaurant experience there. I can delve in and out of front-of-house, too. If I hadn't had gone to work in the hotel at 17, I would never have had the experience to bring to bear on that."

So what would Tom be doing if he'd ploughed on with college as a teen?

He says: "I'm not sure. I wanted to become a primary school teacher, like my mum. That would probably have been a lot of fun too. But right now… It's the dream, really. Who wouldn't want to work an eight-minute stroll away, at their local?"

Hidden River Festival

15 Sept, Redmond Community Centre, New River Path, N4 2HF

Canoeing, silent disco, workshops and live performances is just a snippet of what is on offer at Hidden River Festival's sixth instalment of community fun.

For one-day only, the festival brings a vibrant day of live music, art, crafts, food and events surrounded by the green oasis and wildlife of the New River. Walk along the New River Path to see theatre performances, take part in creative workshops, stalls, a wetland treasure hunt, silent disco - and if you're confident enough - canoe down the river.

Built over 400 years ago, and dug by hand, New River is still in use today, bringing Londoners fresh drinking water from springs in Hertfordshire. Nestled beside the East and West Reservoirs at Woodberry Down, the New River creates a stunning backdrop for the festival.
If you fancy a family-focused day with an intimate, community vibe surrounded by nature, this is the festival for you.

Catch Hidden River Festival from Redmond Community Centre to the Woodberry Wetland Gates from 12noon-6pm.

PREVIEW

Arabian Nights

12 Sept-13 Oct, Hoxton Hall, 130 Hoxton St, N1 6SH

JOIN in on a voyage of discovery through some of the greatest stories ever told, as the historic Hoxton Hall is transformed into an opulent palace, for Arabian Nights.
Filled to the brim with music, puppetry and dance, Arabian Nights is the world premiere of a new play by Nessah Muthy. It follows the story of a young servant girl, Dunzayad, who is to marry the powerful king, Shahryar.
But this isn't her husband-to-be's first wedding – every single night he marries a new girl, and every single morning he has her killed.
As she steps up to take her marriage vows, her sister Sharazad can't stand aside and watch; defiantly facing danger, she bravely sacrifices herself in place of her sibling.
With the feast drawing to a close and the end in sight, Sharazad starts to tell stories. These stories are based on the classic One Thousand and One Nights tales, a collection of folk tales including 'Aladdin's Wonderful Lamp', and 'Ali Baba'.
With every fantastical tale, Sharazad stretches out the thread of their lives a little further, slowly but surely melting the king's stony heart.

THEATRE & LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

LIVE JAZZ

Every Wed, 7pm-11.30pm
Join Boris Latinov on guitar, Jamie Murray on drums, Rio Kai on double bass and Tamás Gyurcsó on sax plus special guests. DJ Jazzintime spins vinyl in between. These musicians bring you a fresh and energetic approach to mainly a hard bop jazz repertoire with jazz classics and their own compositions. And for those musicians out there in the audience, you can join them on stage to jam. Bar available and BBQ food from Slow Fire London. Free. Grow, 98C Wallis Road, Hackney Wick, E9 5LN. RUN IT BACK

29-31 Aug, 7.30pm/ 3pm
Run It Back is a new show from Talawa Theatre Company's TYPT (Talawa Young People's Theatre) of emerging black theatre makers. Run it Back is a celebration of Black British club culture that places the rave under a microscope. Behind the police tape in a disused warehouse, a party is raging. A collective has taken over and distorted bass pulses through the streets, calling the ravers in. Lost in the music and dripping with sweat, they surrender to the DJ's game. Bring your rags and flags for a night of theatre powered by grime, bashment and afrobeat. Running time: 75 mins. £8.50/ £5 conc. Info: 020 3095 9747; hello@hackneyshowroom.com; www.hackneyshowroom.com/run-it-back/

NEW NIGERIANS

29 Aug-15 Sept, 3.30pm/ 8pm
Nigeria: 'The Giant of Africa'. Conservatives rule, but what if the people wanted something different? What if they got it? 'Packed with killer lines and comic characters' (Exeun magazine), this new play is a timely satire on the state of populism in our politics.

PREVIEW

Maria Stuarda

10, 14 & 15 Sept, Sutton House, Homerton High Street, E9 6JQ

MARY, Queen of Scots and Queen Elizabeth I go head-to-head in a historical tragedy. Culminating in a fictitious meeting between the rival queens, this opera is set to sizzle with vocal fireworks.

This concert-version of Gaetano Donzetti's opera tours tudor manor houses, giving audiences a unique experience of heritage and music, and out-of-hours access to these historic buildings.

Pit-stopping at Homerton's Sutton House, the Olivier-Award winning touring company, OperaUpClose, stages a special preview performance.

Mary, Queen of Scots, has been imprisoned by her cousin, Elizabeth, Queen of England.

This is a Britain at war with itself, overcome by uncertainty and strife.

A special performance on 12 Sept sees the Maria Stuarda cast of six singers and a pianist perform Donizetti's powerful melodies to an intimate audience.

Tickets include a complimentary drink, post-show talk, plus an opportunity for an audience with Mary, Queen of Scots and Elizabeth I.

If you love this, the full stage production will open at Stoke Newington's The Old Church next spring. Pop it in your diary.

Work together

Hackney pupils given skills for the future in week-long mentorship programme

A GROUP of young people from Hackney have learnt how to code and network in a week-long mentorship programme, giving them skills for their future careers.

The scheme, which was organised by the Council, the Diana Award charity and WeWork social enterprise, involved pupils from Our Lady's Convent High School, N16, and Cardinal Pole catholic School, E9.

The 34 students were selected by the Diana Award to receive work experience with 15 start up companies, coding workshops, networking opportunities and careers advice.

> "The partnership is a fantastic example of how working together can open up new horizons for the next generation"

Mentees were also advised on the differences between university and apprenticeships, and their separate advantages.

Darnell, who took part on the programme, said: "WeWork and the Diana Award really cared about what I wanted to do and mixed it in with actual work. I know exactly what I am going to do now: when I finish with my secondary school I will try to get an apprenticeship with Tribe, the company that I worked for."

Richelle, who spent her week with Charged Up, a mobile phone charging network, added: "I worked with the sales and marketing department and developed adverts and widgets. I also developed skills like research with data mining. It was an amazing opportunity."

The week culminated in a graduation ceremony at the WeWork offices in Hackney, where Cllr Guy Nicholson Cabinet, Member for Planning, Business and Investment, presented certificates to students who successfully completed the programme.

He said: "The Council is working hard with the borough's businesses to create opportunities for young residents to acquire the skills they need for their future careers.

"The partnership between the Council, WeWork, the Diana Award and Cardinal Pole and Our Lady's schools is a fantastic example of how working together can open up new horizons for the next generation.

"A big thank you must go to all the business mentors for volunteering their time."

News in brief

Going on a voyage of discovery

OVER 100 young people thronged into Hackney Town Hall last month to take part in a mass graduation ceremony.

The 15-year-olds were participants of a 'young leaders for safer cities' programme run by Hackney charity Voyage (Voice of Youth and Genuine Empowerment), which delivers workshops, session-based projects and a bespoke BTEC programme aimed at black and minority ethnic youth.

The programme was designed to develop the leadership qualities needed to reduce gang participation and postcode conflict. The graduation ceremony took place on 20 July.

Sixty per cent of the students who took the course – which lasted six months and culminated in a BTEC level 2 certificate in youth leadership – were from Hackney.

A graduate scheme at the South Hackney Leadership Academy, in the New City College campus in Shoreditch, is set to open its doors on 6 October.

Careers fair for 16-20 year olds

A FREE careers fair for young people who do not know what they want to do after they finish school is set to take place at Hackney Town Hall on 30 August, from 1-4pm.

The event, hosted by the Council, is aimed at 16 to 20 year olds who received their GCSE and A-level results this month and are unsure about their next steps on the careers ladder.

There will be one-to-one expert support as well as stalls from over 20 training providers who will be on-hand to talk about opportunities in a variety of specialisms and industries such as fashion, construction, arts, hospitality, horticulture and media.

For more information, email: maxcine.hill-beattie@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 2124.

Young people present their legacy at Hackney Empire

OVER two weeks in the summer, Hackney Empire's company of 50 young artists – including actors, singers, dancers, musicians and writers – wrote, created and performed an original piece of musical theatre.

Called 'Legacy', the show explored British colonialism, post-war immigration, and Brexit Britain. It also questioned what this generation of young people in Hackney might leave behind for its future residents.

The show was created as part of the Empire's Artist Development Programme (ADP), which is aimed at young artists aged 13-19, who have an interest in the performing arts.

Nina Hudson, who was one of the young people involved in the show and also a peer mentor, said: "At my very first ADP I was a shy girl. Two years later I am a music mentor for the 'Legacy' show.

"ADP has given me the confidence to write my own songs, perform them, and be proud of my work. It's a space that has made me feel comfortable, confident and capable of achieving my creative dreams."

'Legacy' was directed by Susie McKenna and performed at Hackney Empire on 10 August.

Homerton Hospital retains 'good' rating

The CQC has rated Homerton Hospital's acute services overall as 'good'

THE Care Quality Commission (CQC) has rated Homerton Hospital's acute services overall as 'good'.

This is the same rating given by the inspectors the last time they visited the hospital in early 2014, and follows last year's 'good' rating for the Trust's community services and Mary Seacole Nursing Home.

The hospital was visited by CQC inspectors over several days during April and May this year.

The inspectors once again rated the hospital's A&E department as 'outstanding' and, in addition, also rated medical care at the hospital as 'outstanding'.

> "I'm proud that we have a hospital like the Homerton in the borough"

Homerton's maternity services has also achieved a rating of 'good' with inspectors commending significant improvements since the last CQC inspection in 2015.

Trust Chief Executive, Tracey Fletcher, said: "We are delighted that our emergency department, including A&E, has retained its 'outstanding' status and that our medical services have also been rated 'outstanding', both departments receiving particular praise for being responsive and well-led. We congratulate all staff who have contributed to these excellent scores.

"The CQC have also made special mention of the excellent work of our bariatric surgery service in training doctors, and the work of our midwives in developing safeguarding practices and support for vulnerable women."

Cllr Feryal Demirci Deputy Mayor of Hackney, added: "I'm proud that we have a hospital like the Homerton in the borough, which is home to regional and national centres of excellence like the emergency department, the sexual health service and neonatal unit.

"The good partnership between the hospital, City and Hackney CCG, the Council and other local health organisations is key."

News in brief

Hands up, if you're aged 50 and over and want to volunteer

HEALTH and wellbeing charity Hands Inc is offering volunteer training opportunities for residents aged 50 and over to lead health and chair yoga sessions in their communities. The charity, based in The Old Fire Station, Stoke Newington, N16, provides complementary therapies and healthy lifestyle activities.

It is looking for volunteers to take part in a two-year training programme to learn and lead chair-based yoga exercise classes with community groups.

The first training sessions will be from 10am to 1pm on 20 September, 6 December and 14 March 2019.

Volunteers will also need to attend one of the Complementing Your Health sessions held at the Pembury Community Centre each month. The training programme is designed to help older residents gain new skills and knowledge of complementary health and chair yoga (pictured below) while offering them leadership roles to be role models for other residents in the same age group. For more information call Jessica on 020 3051 8626 or email comptherapy@handsinc.co.uk

Join online citizens' panel and share your views on health

A NEW online panel is being set up for people across East London to give their views on health and social care.

The East London Health and Care Partnership wants a diverse mix of people to join its Citizens' Panel where residents can share their thoughts on its proposals for the region, as well as provide their own suggestions, through short online surveys.

Anyone over the age of 16 who lives in East London can register. The Partnership, made up of eight councils and 12 NHS organisations, particularly wants to hear from communities who are traditionally under-represented.

The deadline to register is September 6. Visit is.gd/qxwF6X for more details.

Alzheimer's Society roadshow rolls into Hackney

THE Alzheimer's Society roadshow comes to Hackney Town Hall to offer expert advice, information and support on dementia.

The charity's mobile information service will be outside the town hall on 18 September. It will be visited by the Mayor and Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet member for health, social care, transport and parks, and aims to increase awareness of the condition which affects over 1,300 people in the borough.

Experts will offer free information and advice and talk about the benefits of getting an early diagnosis.

Anyone who is currently living with dementia or anyone who is worried about someone that they think may have the condition, can come to the roadshow outside the Town Hall, in Mare Street, between 10am and 4pm.

There will also be a Dementia Friends Information session at Hackney Empire 2, Wilton Way, E8, from 6.30pm to 7.30pm for anyone who wants to find out more about becoming an Alzheimer's Society Dementia Friend.

To find out more, call 0300 222 11 22 or visit alzheimers.org.uk

Going on a summer holiday

Clockwise from main: 1. Nisbet House, 1952 (R38); 2. Mentmore Pens, 1960 (R1934); 3. Coach trip, 1953/1954 (R355); 4. Elephants Head Pub, 1964 (R3213); 5. Robert Montefiori Children's Synagogue, 1955 (R662); 6. Coach trip, 1953/1954 (R355); 7. VB Blouse Co Ltd's, 1966 (R3801)

BEFORE cheap flights and package holidays there was the annual summer outing. These photographs taken by RA Gibson's studio in Clapton in the 1950s and 1960s show people from Hackney and the surrounding area getting ready to go on their summer trips.

Archives staff don't know where they were headed but it's clear from the smart dresses and suits that these outings were special occasions. The children from Homerton's Nisbet House even had the Mayor waving them off.

Readers might remember VB Blouse & Co on London Lane and Mentmore Pens of Well Street who feature here along with Clapton's Elephant's Head pub, which has recently returned to its original name. It's not known where the group leaving from Mare Street's Regent Cafe (on the corner with Andrews Road) were from, but the men were clearly keen to take supplies with them!

Hackney Archives, based in Dalston, is carrying out a two-year project to digitise images from Gibson's studio so that they can be shared with local people at events around the borough and online. A key part of the project involves interviewing people who appear in the photographs so that their stories can be preserved as part of the history of Hackney.

Hackney Archives will be featuring photographs from the Gibson collection in each edition of Hackney Today. If you recognise anyone in the photos, call: 020 8356 8925; or email: archives@hackney.gov.uk

www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – a social enterprise restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch.
Glass noodle salad is a great summer dish for sharing; it is light and fresh, incorporating lots of vegetables into the mix.

Glass noodle salad

Serves 4

Preparation time
20 mins

Cooking time
5 mins

Ingredients

Salad

- 400g glass noodles, soaked in hot water
- 3 peppers (1 red, 1 green, 1 yellow), de-seeded and sliced
- 2 shallots, sliced
- 1 red chilli, de-seeded and sliced
- ½ bunch of coriander, chopped
- 100g beansprouts
- 2 carrots, grated
- 20g dry seaweed, soaked in warm water
- 2 cloves of garlic, crushed
- 1 tbsp vegetable oil

Dressing

- 50ml soy sauce
- 1 tbsp pomegranate molasses
- 1 tbsp rice vinegar
- 1 tbsp toasted sesame seeds
- 1 tbsp roasted peanuts, crushed
- 100ml sesame oil
- 2 tbsps sweet chilli sauce

Method

- Add 1 tablespoon of vegetable oil to a frying pan. Once heated, fry the shallots and garlic until they are just getting brown
- Add the peppers, beansprouts and carrots; fry for 1 further minute and set aside
- Using the same pan, toast the sesame seeds and peanuts by gently tossing them for 1 or 2 minutes, until lightly brown. Take off to cool
- Make the dressing by mixing the dressing ingredients together in a jug
- Put a pan of water on to boil and add the noodles. Let them boil for 2 or 3 minutes, or until soft but not soggy. Drain and set aside
- Once the stir-fried vegetables and cooked noodles have cooled, mix all remaining salad ingredients together into a salad bowl. Add the toasted nuts and seeds
- Dress the salad with a few tablespoons of the dressing. Enjoy!

Waterhouse - through Blue Marble Training - supports young people across the borough towards careers in the restaurant industry. Owned by Shoreditch Trust, income from this enterprise goes back into training programmes across the borough. Waterhouse in Orsman Road, N1, is open Mon to Fri 9am - 3pm. Evenings and weekends available for large bookings and private events.

Volunteer and join in the fun at the Hackney Carnival

Hackney's hugely popular carnival will once again hit the streets of the borough in September.

The mammoth event will take place on 9 September from 1pm-8pm, where residents and visitors alike will enjoy the spectacular carnival parade, a live music stage, sound systems and all-day play areas for kids.

There are many volunteer roles, in the lead-up, during and after the carnival, to ensure the event runs smoothly. Volunteers must be over 18 and will be paid a £20 Love2Shop voucher in expenses. Training will be provided for stewarding and event management roles.

This opportunity will be great for young people to write on their CV, as well as people who like to contribute to community events both big and small.

The roles are as follows:

- Feedback collection
- Driving support vehicle in procession
- IT and media
- Documentation
- Event Management support
- Stewarding.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2018.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR PHILIP GLANVILLE

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville was directly elected by the borough in 2018. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall.
To book an appointment, e-mail: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 2212. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney, who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Clare Potter.

YOUR GUIDE TO HACKNEY CARNIVAL 2018

Dancers and performers from 28 groups will take part in this year's Hackney Carnival on Sunday, 9 September Photo: Mezzini

FEATHERS, sequins, booming beats and deft dance routines by over 1,000 performers will take the borough's streets by storm on Sunday, 9 September, with the return of Hackney Carnival.

The main attraction will be a colourful parade featuring 28 carnival groups from Hackney and as far afield as Bolivia. This year's parade entries have been inspired by the theme 'iconic Hackney'.

The procession is due to start from Queensbridge Road at 1.30pm and takes about four hours to travel around the borough (See inside for route map).

As well as spectacular costumes and dancing at the Council-run event, there will be seven sound systems and live music from around the world as part of an all-day carnival extravaganza.

The exciting programme of entertainment starts at 12noon and runs until 8pm, involving different parts of the borough in the family-friendly, party atmosphere.

There will be a live music stage in Gillett Square, Dalston, headlined by legendary Jamaican reggae star Earl 16. Carnival fun in Ridley Road, Dalston, is set to feature food stalls and five sound systems: Solution Sound System, NTS Live, First Class Sound, Jah Prophecy, and Dubson Sounds (See back page for details).

There are also two sound systems in new areas: Eldica Records, in Bradbury Street, Dalston; and Faggamuffin Bloc Party, in Bohemia Place, Hackney Central. This will be the carnival's first ever sound system run by queer people of colour.

Children and families can enjoy a free play area in Gillett Square, from 12noon to 6pm, featuring a pop-up playground. While in Town Hall Square, the Hackney Playbus will be parked alongside a play road for youngsters on bikes.

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member with responsibility for arts and culture, said: "The countdown to Hackney Carnival 2018 is on. It is a grassroots celebration of our community and this year is set to be the biggest yet, with 1,000 performers taking to the streets to celebrate Hackney."

Hackney Carnival is delivered by the Council in partnership with Transport for London, Shoreditch Town Hall, Global Carnivalz and Hackney Walk.

Join in the fun

THERE'S lots of ways that people can participate in this year's Hackney Carnival, the most important being to cheer on the parade and get involved in celebrations across the borough.

Spectators can line the route from 1.30pm when the procession is due to start from the bridge over Regent's Canal in Queensbridge Road. It will then make its way north, turning right onto Richmond Road, and then left along Mare Street towards Hackney Town Hall, where the carnival judging point will be.

This is where the parade groups make an extra special effort to shine. The parade then heads up Amhurst Road, down Dalston Lane, and finishes back at the junction between Queensbridge and Richmond Road at about 5pm (See map below).

Local young people are also getting involved by helping to produce a live stream of the 90-minute procession as it moves past the judging point – on the Hackney Live platform – for a world wide web audience.

Throughout the summer, there have also been carnival-themed workshops for residents to make decorations and costumes for the event, including St Joseph's Hospice and the Hackney Caribbean Elders Association.

The event's Creative Director, Pax Nindi (pictured above), said: "There is no doubt that Hackney Carnival has become the country's best, fast growing carnival and it's special since it comes directly from the people of Hackney. The carnival has a lovely community feel. Everyone, young and old, gets involved.

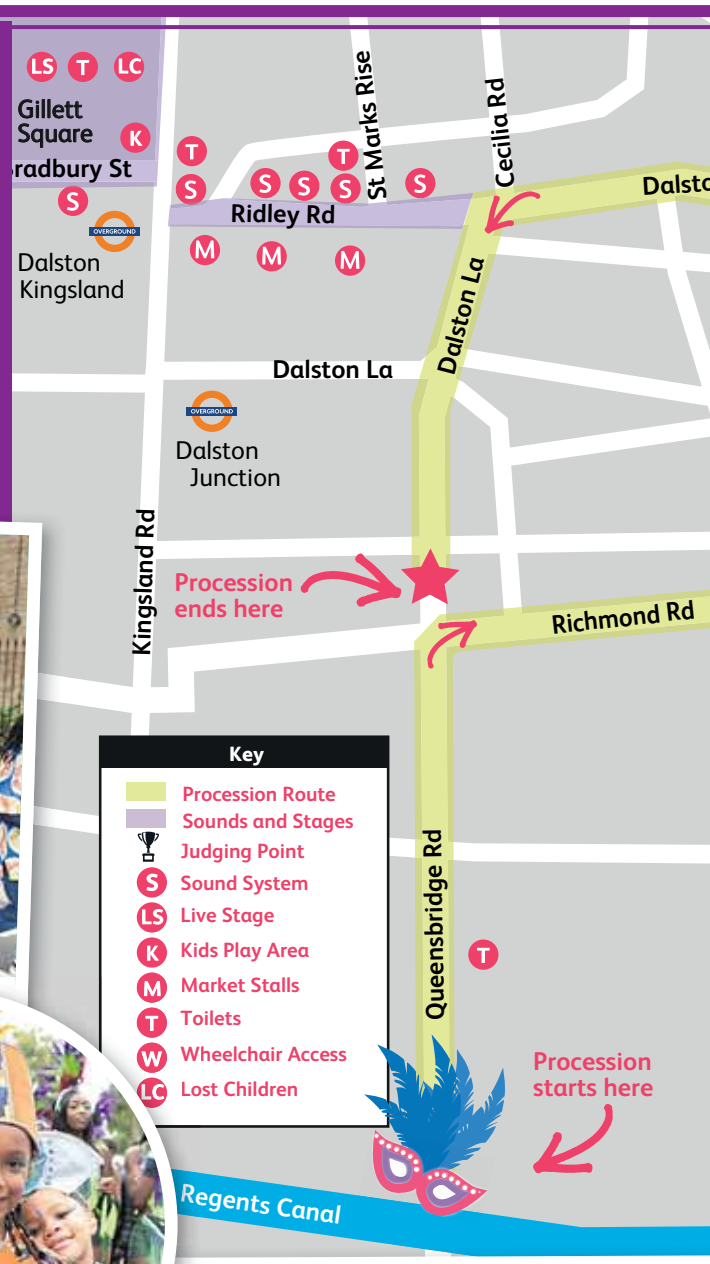

"As well as the amazing costumes and dancing, the best thing about Hackney Carnival is that it brings everyone together to have fun and discover each other's cultures."

THEME IN CARNIVAL

Each year participating groups devise their own well researched themes, before creating costumes, musical arrangements and dance routines. It is these themes that shape each group's parade entry. Some of the band leaders go as far afield as Trinidad or Brazil to research their themes and source materials. Themes can be political, historical or just plain fun. See how many you can work out this year.

THE HISTORY OF CARNIVAL IN HACKNEY

Carnival in Hackney dates back to the early 1970s, with the first ever one believed to be the Street Carnival Theatre in De Beauvoir, organised by African and Caribbean community centre Centerprise in 1973. The current carnival format dates from 2008, when 15 bands came together with Hackney Council, facilitated by Pax Nindi, to develop Hackney One Carnival to mark the 2012 Games. By 2016, the annual event had simplified its name to Hackney Carnival.

The Council sets aside a budget to support local carnival groups to produce their costumes. The groups also meet four times a year to feedback on the event and input into its direction. After the main event in September, there is a ceremony to announce the winners of various fiercely contested Hackney Carnival awards and to celebrate the achievements of local groups.

THE FOOD

In some cultures, carnival was the last chance for people to eat well before religious fasting. Today this tradition means there are often plentiful food stalls at carnival, offering a chance for people to taste fare from around the world. Hackney Carnival is no different, and Ridley Road will have loads of stalls, so tuck in.

THE MUSIC

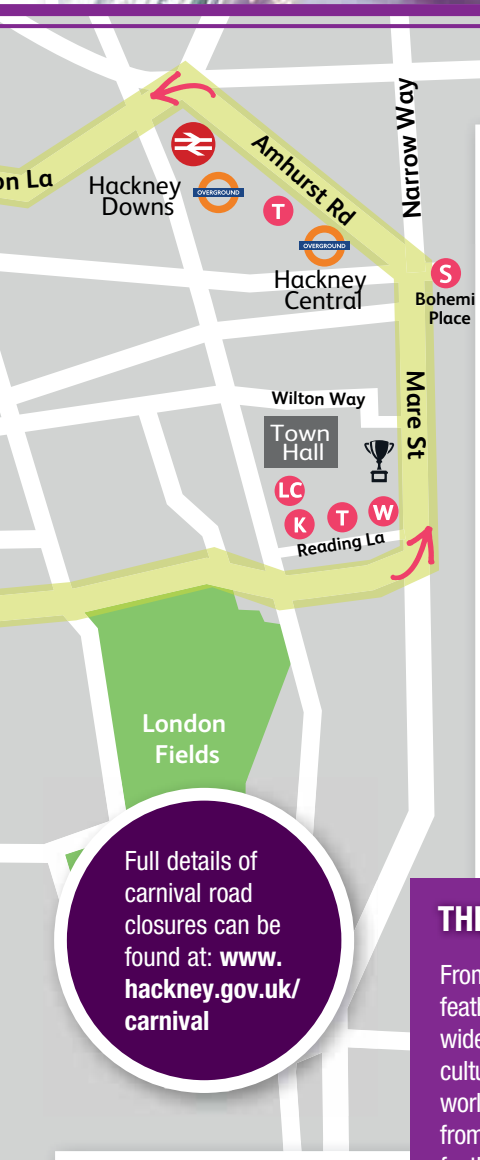

Music is an integral part of the carnival experience. It's a chance for all different styles to mix together. There will be samba beats, RnB, steel-pan bands, traditional African drumming – and that's just the music of the procession. Don't miss out on the seven sound systems and live music stage.

THE DANCING

A Senegalese lion man will stalk the carnival procession in a traditional dance from West Africa, while bells peal out from the shoes of a Bolivian band as they dance in time. There will also be choreographed routines to the latest Rihanna hits and the chance for audiences to dance the day away at seven sound systems and a live music stage.

THE COSTUMES

From handmade tie-dye tops to gloriously feathered headdresses, carnival has a wide variety of costumes representing cultures and countries from across the world. See if you can spot African prints from Ghana or the brightly coloured feathered headdresses of Caribbean and Latin American groups.

WHAT IS CARNIVAL?

The origin of the word carnival comes from the Italian 'carnevale' derived from the Latin carnem (meat) and levare (remove). It is a traditional Christian celebration which marks the beginning of Lent, the period of 40 days before Easter during which no meat is eaten.

Generally carnival is a public celebration, typically held outdoors and involving stalls, entertainment, and processions. There are many different types of carnival, celebrated in different styles and at different times of the year in countries across the world, including the Caribbean, Latin America and most of Europe.
Hackney Carnival is special because it is created by the local community, blending the multicultural styles of carnival together in one big celebration of Hackney.

Gillett Square live stage programme

AS part of carnival, organisers programme a host of musical talent for a live stage in Gillett Square, Dalston. This year, there will be more local bands alongside headline act, legendary reggae star Earl 16, who has enjoyed over 30 years in the business and is one of the most respected and loved reggae artists around the globe.

DJ EXPLOSION
A final set from all the DJs who have played earlier sets, showcasing different genres including roots reggae, Afrobeat, dub and world music.

Tun up sounds

Carnival celebrations are traditionally famous for the sound systems and DJ collectives that can be as big a draw as the parade itself. This year, Hackney Carnival is pleased to present it's biggest, and most diverse, line-up of sound systems ever. Most are based in the Dalston area, but new kid on the block Faggamuffin Bloc Party, in Hackney Central, looks set to make history as the carnival's first ever sound system run and curated by queer people of colour.
Why not see if you can check them all out in one day...
